

Daisies has a strong focus on learning for all, including our kaiako. Three times each year we run in-house wananga lead by our Directors, Head Teachers, Education Leaders and external experts. Our team has a good mix of teachers who all bring ideas and passion to our teaching and learning environment.

Right now we would love to welcome a new graduate teacher to our team as a Key Teacher. Someone who is seeking to start an amazing career in early childhood education with us. What matters most is your passion and enthusiasm for working at Daisies.

Further information about Daisies can be found on our website www.daisies.co.nz and our Facebook page. Daisies was created 13 years ago with a vision of intentionally applying best practice in ECE – drawn from research and observations from Dr Anne Meade and Rachel Denee, our lead pedagogistas - and inspiring others to do the same. We are well known now throughout the sector and regularly receive enquiries from teachers wishing to see and hear about “The Daisies Way”.

In 2019 we opened our second centre which enabled us to create two distinctive houses with a stronger focus on each age-group. There remains significant interaction between the houses, with a number of teachers having worked in both. Our head teachers and education leaders work collaboratively together across both houses.

We are active participants in the Reggio Emilia Aotearoa community of practice, and we also have a strong interest in RIE/Pikler philosophies. In our recent report ERO commented “The team effectively implements a highly responsive curriculum that enhances children’s mana and identity as learners. The environment is child centred and carefully resourced to support different age groups and a wide range of interests.”

We look forward to receiving your application.
